

James Beasley has been involved with financial management activities for over thirty-five years. He began his business career with the Standard Oil Company, Ohio in cash and debt management. After SOHIO he worked for Johns-Manville Corporation as Vice President and Treasurer and then as Senior Vice President, Finance. He later became the Chief Operating Officer at Rogers Casey & Associates where he was responsible for the operations of this large asset-consulting firm. Jim started his own consulting company, J. F. Beasley & Company, Inc., in 1991 and for five years he was also the Managing Director and a founder of Horizon Asset Management LLC in Denver. Jim brings a vast array of investment and consulting skills to his clients including cash management, banking services, portfolio management involving cash and defined contribution and defined benefit fund programs, foreign exchange, corporate restructuring, debt management, and strategic planning. Jim has been involved with many professional organizations including the Government Finance Officers Association (GFOA) as an advisor to the standing committee for Cash Management and Investments, the National Association of Corporate Treasurers (NACT), Financial Executives International, and he was a charter member of the Treasury Management Association (TMA), now called the Association for Financial Professionals (AFP). Jim has an Investment Advisor Representative Series 65 Certification, a BS degree in Industrial Management and Chemistry from Purdue University, and his MBA from Cornell University. J. F. Beasley & Company, Inc. is a consulting firm and a Registered Investment Advisor.